VOL. XXVI

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, SAN MATEO COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1919.

NO. 39.

Y. M. C. A. ROOMS WILL OPEN OCT. 3

ENTERTAINMENT WILL BE GIVEN TO MARK DEDICATION OF NEW QUARTERS; WORK TO BEGIN SOON ON LEVELING GROUND.

Within a few days work will begin on the Y. M. C. A. playground and recreation rooms to be established in this city. The campaign for funds has been successful to the extent that about $6600 of the desired $7500 has been pledged, and there is every prospect that within a very short time the funds available will reach and probably exceed the full amount asked. In the meantime work will go on in the fitting of the rooms and equipping of the grounds.

The order for the playground equipment has already been placed and the articles the place will contain give assurance of a ground that will be a credit to the city and to those who have contributed so generously, as well as a never-ending delight to the children. There will be four seesaws, several swings, a "giant stride," a frame of traveling rings, an indoor baseball ground and basketball and handball courts. It is hoped that later on a tennis court can be added. It is expected that the equipment will have arrived by the time the place is leveled and put in condition.

The first of next week, work of leveling will begin on the ground, this task having been taken charge of by Supervisor Thomas Hickey.

Friday evening, October 3d, will see the formal opening of the new Y. M. C. A. class and social rooms in Metropolitan Hall. Work began this week of getting the hall thoroughly cleaned out in preparation for the installation of new furniture. Reading tables will be installed and there will be found the latest newspapers and magazines. There will be pool and billiard tables and also facilities for playing such games as checkers, chess, dominoes, etc. A stage will be put in soon, to be used when entertainments are given. On the opening night, October 3d, there will be a good program. The full entertainment has not yet been decided upon, but there will be musical numbers by Miss Rue R. Clifford and Miss Viola Mae Hein and others, two or three addresses and some comedy numbers to lend spice and ginger to the affair. Refreshments will be served and everything will be free.

Secretary David L. Smith states that the "Y" evening classes for foreigners are proving very popular, about fifty students now being enrolled. With the installation of furniture in the new quarters classes will be held there, and it is believed that the better facilities will result in giving a still greater impetus to the work.

REV. DANIEL STEVENS RETURNS TO CHARGE ANOTHER YEAR

All friends of the Rev. Daniel Stevens, as well as members of the local Methodist church of which Mr. Stevens is pastor, were glad to learn that Mr. Stevens has been returned to this charge for another year by the Methodist conference held in Santa Cruz last week. The genial young clergyman has made many friends during his pastorate here, not only among his congregation but outside as well.

COMMERCE CHAMBER BACKS SAVINGS DRIVE

Well-Attended Meeting Held at City Hall; Trustees to Be Urged to Plant Trees in Parkings.

An unusually large number of members of the Chamber of Commerce attended the meeting at the city hall Tuesday night. The Chamber meeting followed one of the workers in the local Y. M. C. A. campaign, in which late results in the drive were canvassed.

President W. H. Dinning presided at the Chamber of Commerce session.

L. E. Adams, district chairman for war savings, brought up the matter of having a campaign for the sale of thrift stamps in South San Francisco, and E. C. Peck was appointed a committee of one with the power to select as many helpers as he wished to arrange for such a drive here.

The question of whether the Chamber should take space in an advertising supplement to be put out soon by a San Francisco newspaper was raised, and E. C. Peck, P. R. Thompson, and W. J. Martin were appointed a committee to look into the proposition. The same committee was also instructed to investigate the feasibility or possibility of gain to this community of spending money in moving picture advertising.

At the instance of Andrew Hynding, the Chamber of Commerce decided to urge the city trustees to plant trees in the parkings along the streets, and Ambrose McSweeney was appointed a committee of one to appear before the city fathers and urge that this be done and also to secure the help of the Woman's Club to the same end.

E. N. Brown, E. C. Peck, and City Engineer George Kneese were appointed a committee to investigate the practicability of constructing a road across the swamp near Baden to connect this city with the highway.

TRUSTEES DISCUSS CITY HALL PLANS WITH S. F. ARCHITECTS

The city trustees held an informal meeting in the office of E. E. Cunningham Tuesday night to look over plans and sketches for the interior of the proposed city hall, as presented by Coffee & Werner, the San Francisco architects who have the drawing of the plans. The architects stated that because of the great increases in the cost of materials and construction in the last few months, original plans may have to be altered to some extent. One change suggested is from cement to wooden floors, which would mean a saving of $10,000. No official action of any kind was taken at the meeting.

W. E. BILLS ARRESTED FOR HAVING STOLEN PROPERTY

The arrest of Walter E. Bills of this city Tuesday of this week on a charge of having stolen goods in his possession came as a shock to his many friends here. Bills and his family have been residents of South San Francisco for a number of years and during that time his reputation has been excellent. He has been employed as a plumber in a local shop. Bills' arrest was the outgrowth of the arrest of Robert Lentz of San Francisco, a delivery clerk employed by Weinstein-Nichols, an auto accessory firm of that city. Lentz was arrested on a grand larceny charge preferred by his employers. Officers claim that several hundred dollars' worth of the $17,500 worth of goods stolen was found in the cellar of the Bills home in this city. Bills claims that the goods were bought by him in all good faith and without the slightest knowledge of their having been stolen.

WELCOME HOME SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

FROM START OF PARADE TO END OF DANCE ALL GOES OFF WITHOUT A HITCH; LARGE CROWDS WITNESS BRILLIANT EVENTS.

"Welcome Home" day in South San Francisco was certainly a grand success. From the start of the parade in the morning last Saturday till the close of the day in the early hours of the next day the program planned went off without a hitch. It was a day the residents of this city will long remember, a day that none of the returned service men or the families of those who did not return will ever forget. The very weather seemed to conspire for the success of the occasion, for it was a clear day, warm enough to be pleasant, cool enough to be invigorating. And the flags and bunting waving in the brilliant sunlight from every store front in the city made a beautiful setting for the day's activities.

Many People See Parade

Several thousand people from this city and the surrounding country lined the streets as the parade wound its way through the business section. The procession was made up according to the original plan, the mayor and city trustees leading the way, followed by cars containing the speakers and the men who had been wounded. Behind the cars marched the men in khaki and blue under Lieut. D. G. Martin, the Boy Scouts under the Rev. Daniel Stevens, himself in the marine's uniform he wore in the service. The Goddess of Liberty, impersonated by pretty little Elizabeth Coffinberry, rode on a float and was followed by the fire department. A feature of the parade was little Nixon Brown, attired in cowboy outfit with goatskin chaps and mounted on a Shetland pony.

The Addresses

Arrived at the bandstand the course of people who had assembled—listened to an invocation by the Rev. Daniel Stevens, who returned thanks that the world had been saved from slavery to the Hun and that so many of our brave men-at-arms had been permitted to come through the terrible tempest of fire and blood. Dr. J. C. McGovern, chairman of the committee who had the occasion in charge, spoke briefly explaining the object of the day's celebration, after which Mayor G. W. Holston formally welcomed the returned men to their homes and the peaceful pursuits of civil life. Patrick Bowler responded on behalf of the service men, stating that though they had been willing to go to war in defense of their country, the men were all glad to be home again and were keenly appreciative of the splendid affair that had been arranged for them. E. E. Cunningham, a veteran of the Civil War, gave an address in which he referred to the G. A. R. as the "Army of the Past" and to the youthful veterans before him as "The Grand Army of the Future," and exhorted them to carry into civil life the high ideals of patriotism and devotion to liberty that had called them to the bloody fields of battle.

Following Mr. Cunningham a new orator made his debut in South San Francisco. Henry Scampini, one of the service men from this city, now a student at the University of California, delivered an address that was

SIXTY TONS OF HAY DESTROYED ON WHARF

San Mateo Firm Sustains Heavy Loss in Fire Near Site of Terra Cotta Plant; Wharf Is Saved.

One of the most serious fires that has occurred in this city for some time took place last Tuesday afternoon, when sixty tons of baled alfalfa hay belonging to the San Mateo Feed and Fuel Company of San Mateo was destroyed at the wharf near where the Steiger terra cotta plant formerly stood. The hay was being unloaded from a ship at the wharf. The sixty tons, a large part of the ship's cargo, had been put on the wharf when smoke was discovered coming from the bottom of the pile. The vessel pulled away from the wharf to save the remainder of its cargo. By the time the alarm had reached the local fire department the fire had made some headway. When the department reached the scene 2000 feet of hose had to be run from the hydrants at the Western Meat plant because of the hydrants on the site of the Steiger plant having been rendered useless by the fire that destroyed the terra cotta works some time ago. The hay was entirely destroyed, but by strenuous efforts the department was able to save the wharf upon which it stood although the timbers caught fire several times. From the fact that the fire started in the bottom of the pile, it is believed that one of the men engaged in unloading the hay dropped a cigarette stub and piled the hay on top of it. The hay was alfalfa and was worth over $20 a ton. Part of it was consigned to Kauffmann Brothers of this city. Fourteen men of the local fire department and several more from the Western Meat plant worked from 4:30 in the afternoon when the alarm was turned in until 8:30 that evening before the fire was extinguished and the wharf saved.

FOUR FOREST FIRES RAGING IN CALIF.

Four forest fires are raging today in different parts of California, thousands of acres of mountain sides has been denuded of growth, millions of feet of valuable timber has been destroyed, and in at least one instance magnificent redwood trees are now in the direct path of a raging holocaust that is practically beyond human control. Advice from San Jose late last night declared that "Big Trees," the famous park of redwoods in Santa Cruz county, would be swept by fire from end to end within a few hours unless more help could be obtained to fight. Additional men are being hurried to the spot today from San Mateo, Santa Cruz, and Santa Clara counties. If the fire reaches the grove, one of the state's most beautiful parks will be laid waste.

In the southern part of the state a fire is raging in Angeles national forest and has already devastated 160,000 acres. Soldiers from Camp Kearney are being hurried to fight the flames.

In the northeast, Placerville is practically surrounded by mountain fires today and considerable property loss besides timber has been reported.

In another section of Placer county a fire is burning uncontrolled and beside a large area of timber has destroyed 2000 feet of Southern Pacific snowsheds.

In modern parlance a successful business man is one who gets the other fellow's money and hangs onto it.

SALOONS TAKE RENEWAL OF LICENSES

TWENTY LIQUOR HOUSES GRANTED RENEWAL OF LICENSE BY TRUSTEES; PERMITS ARE FOR LAST QUARTER OF THE YEAR.

Twenty saloon licenses were renewed at Monday night's meeting of the board of city trustees. These licenses are for the last quarter of the year, or from October 1st to December 31st. The wording of each reads for the sale of "fermented liquors and wines or any mixtures thereof."

A number of bills were presented at the meeting, but could not be passed upon because of the absence of Trustees Kelley and Healy, both of whom are members of the finance committee.

The following are the names of those granted saloon license renewals, each application being accompanied by two sureties: Peter Pala, John McGrath, R. G. Burns, E. Galli, A. Baradat, Joseph Biagini, R. E. Setter, George H. Wallace, Charles Stuermann, L. Bortoli, Richard Harder, C. Peter Regli, A. Ratti, George E. Walther, Angiolini & Ghilardi, G. Venturi, Peter Bavatteri, A. Locatelli, E. Ferrario, Bertuccelli & Brocchini. Peter Bavatteri was granted a "class B" or restaurant liquor license, Peter Regli a special license, all the others "class A" or saloon liquor license.

SOME OF THE CITY'S TRIBUTES UNDELIVERED

Not all of the service men who are entitled to the tribute of appreciation given by this city to those who went to war were able to be at the "welcome home" affair last Saturday, as many had returned to this city and then gone to other places. As a result there are still a number of the tributes undelivered. Here is the list of those undelivered. The men to whom they belong can get them by calling at the office of E. E. Cunningham, next door to the postoffice:

Alberto Carpino, Tidore Marno, Wesley Walker, Charles Pickett, Nick Paperos, Ernesta Mainini, Philip McGovern, Angelo Luoni, John Mark, William J. Weese, Joseph McCann, Louis Maretti, Manual Audry, Oscar Johnson, Louis Leberis, Charles Miller, Giacomo Cassini, Melville Coakley, James Alevizos, Giuseppe Babere, Francis M. Dowling, Hall Shepard, Rasmus P. Hansen, William Norton, Louis Schoenborn, William L. Doyle, John J. Martin, Edwin K. Wesley, William Lucchesi, John Tichy, John Hawes, Arnold Vanomen, Ian N. Grant, Charles Faivre, Husebio Rossetti, Settini Francalanci, Camillo Tambusi, Emil Bryggmann, John Stathpoulos, William Glen Thompson, A. J. Anderson, Peter rLucia, Mario Cornelious, Angelo Cerquetini, Elisio Baldissori, Ceaser Cobertaldo, John J. Walsh, Ernest Kapinos, Neil McSwain, Edgar S. Milan, Louis Huer, Otto Balck, Eugene Stefani, Ballthasa Stolzlechner, Arthur S. Lindley, Domenico Barbera, Pietro Franzola, Martin Moro, George Berry, George L. Maynard Jr., Gordon Wilson, David G. Martin, Archibald O. Lockhart, Rev. Leslie C. Kelley, Louis Belloni, Virgil A. Pozzi.

Poor little innocent dove of peace! It seems to have died when the armistice was signed nearly a year ago.

WELCOME, SUCCESSFUL.

listened to with the greatest pleasure and interest by his hearers, practically every one of whom has known him since he was a very small boy. Mr. Scampini spoke with an earnestness and fervor that carried his audience with him and won prolonged applause. He referred to himself as one of those eager to go overseas but fated to stay on this side. He paid impassioned tribute to the achievements of those who reached the front, and spoke feelingly of the sacrifices of those who had stayed at home and provided the sinews of war that made possible the valorous deeds of those who met the Hun.

The last speaker was W. J. Martin, who addressed the men briefly but with the strength and virility that always characterizes his addresses. Paraphrasing the address of Napoleon to his soldiers, Mr. Martin stated: "Soldiers of America, 150 years of American freedom look down upon you today." Another telling period was: "So long as each of you lives he will hear the still, small voice saying, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'"

The Luncheon

One of the most pleasant and successful features of the entire day was the luncheon served in Fraternal Hall to the service men, the city trustees and the Boy Scouts by the ladies of the town. The head of the table was accorded to Manuel Tobash, the most seriously wounded of any South San Francisco boy who went to the war. The company remained at the table for three hours, not a moment of which dragged. The time was enlivened by stories of camp and trench told by those who went through the greatest war of all time in their country's service. Singing was also indulged in, led by two entertainers from San Francisco.

One of the main features of the banquet was the presentation to the men in uniform of the beautiful tribute of appreciation, given by the city to those who returned from the war, and the no less beautiful memorial presented to the families of those who gave their lives in the struggle. As W. J. Smith read the names of the men, the ladies who had been waiting on the tables delivered the big envelopes to their owners.

The Dance

Several hundred couples took part in the grand ball at night. Many gathered in the ball room of Fraternal Hall, where an orchestra furnished the music, but still more took part in the street dance under a blazing network of electric light to music by the San Mateo Band, this band having also taken part in the parade and given a concert in the afternoon.

Altogether it was a great day, a wonderful day, and not an event happened from start to finish to mar its most complete success.

MOOSE MAKE PREPARATIONS FOR BIG TIME SATURDAY NIGHT

All signs point to a huge gathering at Fraternal Hall Saturday night for the grand masked ball and carnival to be given by the South San Francisco lodge of Moose. The committee in charge under Chairman I. S. Boyer has made preparations to entertain at least 2000 persons. There will be dancing on two floors. Three maids will be in attendance to take care of small children and comfort rooms with couches have been provided for the children when they get tired. The ball room on the second floor has been beautifully decorated with crepe paper, 16,000 yards of paper ribbons having been used. Lester Howard has acted as chairman of the decorations committee. Arrangements have been made for an all-night car service. The big fun of the evening will start at 9 o'clock, when Gloom will be given a trial in front of the hall for the murder of Joy. It is a foregone conclusion that he will be convicted and arrangements have been made to hang the culprit before the assembled crowd.

Wished to Forget.

"Stop that!" cried old Growcher to his small nephew who was reciting about the cow jumping over the moon. "There's no use constantly reminding us how high beef and dairy products have gone."—Exchange.

Soft drinks would be O. K. if they were not quite so soft.

THEY GET RESULTS!

Every day evidence is brought to The Enterprise office of results following the use of Little Liner want ads in this paper. Within the last week five users of the Little Liners got what they were after, the list including help wanted, building material for sale, house for rent, and room for rent. Those Little Liners are result getters. Try one and wear "the smile that won't come off." What are you in need of?

PETER LIND MAY LEAVE SOON FOR MINE AT QUINCY

Peter Lind is the latest resident of this city to get the mining fever. Lind is a stockholder in the Australian Placer Mining Company, whose property is near Quincy, Calif., and he has announced that as soon as necessary arrangements can be made he expects to move his family to Quincy. About a score of South San Francisco men have become interested in the mine, and a number of them have moved to Quincy in the last two months. Considerable work has been done lately in the way of making a road to the mine and doing other preliminary work, and before long actual development in the mine itself will start.

RUSSIANS WEAR ATHLETIC SHOES WHEN WALKING ON ICE

American football and baseball shoes will be worn rather extensively in western Russia this winter, say advices from Copenhagen, but they will be used to keep the natives from slipping on the ice and not to aid gridiron and diamond heroes to make end runs or steal bases. A thousand pairs of these iron-cleated shoes arrived at the big American Red Cross warehouse in Copenhagen in a recent shipload of relief supplies, that also included clothing and medicine originally consigned to the American force at Archangel, but now destined to aid the people of the Baltic provinces.

Oh, Gosh!

Here is a little story from the Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette:

"Seven years ago a farmer living near this city hung his vest on a fence post by the barnyard. A calf chewed up part of the garment, including a pocket in which was a standard gold watch.

"Last week the animal, a staid old milk cow, was butchered for beef, and the timepiece was found in such a position between the lungs of the cow that the respiration—the closing in and filling out of the lungs—kept the stemwinder wound up so that the watch had only lost four minutes in the seven years."

W. J. MARTIN, General Manager

They were a hard lot and a poly-mot one!

The English and Americans amongst them had every appearance of being the sweepings of the slums of London, Liverpool, New York, and, for men of their ilk, the more vicious seaports of the far East. The rest were of every nationality—two of the coal-passers were Chinese coolies, the steward was from the West Indies, the cook was a Frenchman from Port Said, and two Danes, a Swede, a Kanaka, from the Sandwich Islands, and three Japanese completed the roster.

Wallen looked up, and fixed his eyes speculatively on his Chinese boatman. They were almost at the landing.

"You sabe Drink-House Sam?" he demanded abruptly.

The Chinaman smirked knowingly. "Me sabe," he replied.

"All right," said Wallen. "You take me there. But first, you take me where

"Me Sabe," He Replied.

the stores are, I want to buy some things, and I don't know my way about."

"Me sabe," said the Chinaman again. "All same velly good guide."

He proved to be. Within half an hour after landing, Wallen had completed the purchase of an excellent automatic pistol and ammunition, and was following the Chinaman back along a dark street near the waterfront. Another few minutes of twistings and turnings, and the Chinaman had halted before an uninviting-looking hostelry in an equally uninviting-looking neighborhood.

"Drink-House Sam's," announced the guide. "Blim-bly you all same go back ship? Me wait?"

"No," said Wallen, as he paid the other. "That's all. Good-night, John!" The Chinaman disappeared.

Wallen surveyed the building before which he stood. It was one of those Easternized-European wooden structures, two stories high, the front rooms on the second story opening directly onto the veranda. With the general air of being disreputably out at elbows, it bore all the earmarks of a sailor's boarding house of the lowest type.

Wallen stepped forward, pushed the bar-room door open, and entered.

A bar ran down one side; a score of small tables occupied the main portion of the room, and around these were clustered some twenty-five or thirty rough-looking hands, evidently on shore leave from the harbor's shipping—and making the most of it.

Behind the bar were two men, one of whom Wallen made no doubt, was Drink-House Sam, presumably, the proprietor—a big man in shirt sleeves, the sleeves rolled to the elbows over puffed, blue-veined arms, a man whose face was florid, and hard-lined, with eyes close-set, and whose close-cropped hair, with little white skin-spots showing where the clippers had done their work too thoroughly, lent a peculiarly repellent aspect to his general appearance. A steel-like glint held for an instant in Wallen's eyes—and vanished! Drink-House Sam of Singapore!

Wallen crossed to the bar, and confronted the big man in shirt sleeves.

"Are you the proprietor here?" he asked. "The man the coolies call Drink-House Sam?"

The other eyed him furtively.

"That's me; Sam Marle, by rights," he admitted curtly. "What can I do for you, mister?"

"Well," said Wallen, lowering his voice, "I'd like a few minutes of your time, somewhere in private."

"What for?" demanded Marle.

Wallen leaned across the bar.

"It's about the Upolo," he said confidentially.

The man stared at him for a moment, a curiously mingled expression of cunning and surprise creeping into the small, black, red-rimmed, shifty eyes—then he stepped abruptly out from behind the bar, led the way to an empty table at the end of the room by the rear door, and flung himself down into a chair.

Wallen followed, but remained standing on the opposite side of the table.

"I can't say I call this very private," he protested.

"I'll do till I know more of your business!" grunted Marle. "Take it or leave it. I ain't for sneakin' off with the first stranger that comes in, and havin' every last one of these swine here get to figurin' I'm puttin' up some sort of a deal to shanghai his particular carcass. And sit down, mister—you're showin' more'n is necessary of your good clothes."

It was true.

His standing there after the other had seated himself only served to attract further attention. A crowd at the next table was already indulging sotto voce, in uncomplimentary and drunkenly offensive remarks.

"Now shoot the works!" prompted Drink-House Sam. "What about this 'ere Upolo?"

Wallen was casting about in his mind for what to say now. If he could play the man, arouse the other's fear, perhaps, or his curiosity that would be backed by fear, or his cunning, or his interest sufficiently to get him somewhere alone without giving away his own hand.

Ah! Yes, he had it now. Helen MacKay had unwittingly furnished him the lead with her laughing reference to putting his head into the lion's mouth. If he said innocently that Ting Wah had sent him!

Drink-House Sam would naturally conclude that the Chinese accomplice was still playing into his hand, and had sent him, Wallen, back into the power of this rat-eyed murderer with the bloated face to complete the work that Ting Wah, for some reason or other, had been unable to accomplish.

Wallen's hands that were thrust into his trousers' pockets clenched fiercely. This man before him, just a few feet away with just the table top between them, was Drink-House Sam at last, the man who knew, the man he had dreamed of night and day in his long convalescence at MacKnight's as the man who some day he would treat as he would treat a poison snake!

Queer that he was seeing that screaming, maddened wretch, Won Su, jump overboard again.

His mind seemed to grow almost ghoulish. That flabby neck of the man in front of him was Drink-House Sam's, the man who had loosed a pack of Chinese thugs upon him—how far in would his fingers sink?

"Well, you got lockjaw?" growled Drink-House Sam. "This 'ere Upolo, you was sayin'?"

"Yes," said Wallen, and smiled engagingly. "It's a bit of a longish story, but I'll cut it short with a word—yellow jack cleaned her out somewhere in the Java sea."

"Huh!" snorted Marle. "Everybody knows that. Most of us can read, mister. She was picked up by the gunboat Phyllis a few weeks ago; and a 'orrid mess she was, accordin' to accounts."

"Is that so? I hadn't heard she'd been picked up," said Wallen slowly. "But that's nothing to do with what brought me here. You knew a chink aboard her called Ting Wah, didn't you?"

The thrust was unexpected, as Wallen had meant it to be. Marle, with an involuntary start, leaned sharply forward over the table; and then, with a clumsy attempt to cover his agitation, spoke viciously:

"Say, what the 'ell you givin' us? How should I know him?"

"You don't know him?" ejaculated Wallen in well-simulated surprise.

"Never heard of him," declared Marle; but the rat eyes were stealthily searching Wallen's face.

"That's strange," Wallen mused aloud perplexedly. "I'm quite sure I haven't made a mistake. The man was dying, of course, and pretty far gone, and talked thickly, but it was Ting Wah that sent me to you. He—Wallen's fists in his pockets clenched a little harder—"said you would know."

"Did he?" inquired Marle with a sneer. "And who are you, mister?"

"I'm Wallen—Stacey Wallen, the first mate, you know," said Wallen earnestly. "I'm the sole survivor; left the bark in a boat and—what's wrong, Mr. Marle?"

The florid face, a miserable fear stamped upon it, and a grayish color, and the man, jaw-sagged, was staring across the table. A fierce joy swept Wallen—and then uneasiness. Perhaps, after all, his strategy had been faulty.

Drink-House Sam was evidently placing a far different interpretation on Ting Wah's dying message than he,

Sprang Up From His Seat.

Wallen, had intended. And then, to Wallen's amazement, as abruptly as fear had come into the other's face it was gone, and in its place was sudden relief, genuine enough for all the shrewd, cunning gleam of the eyes that accompanied it.

"You say you are Wallen, eh, the first mate?" asked Marle craftily.

"Yes," said Wallen composedly.

"Then you're a liar!" Marle shouted instantly and sprang up from his seat.

There was an echoing creak of chairs as they were shoved back all over the room, the scuffle of heavy boots as men rose to their feet. Wallen, suddenly hard-faced, taken by surprise, hastily pushed his own chair back and stood up.

Marle was laughing brutally now, but in a strangely hysterical way, in which relief again was dominant. It puzzled Wallen—but there was little time to think of that. The men from the nearest table were pushing forward.

"What do you chaps say to that?" Marle bawled out, pointing toward Wallen. "This 'ere cove says he's Wallen, the first mate of the Upolo, the bark you've all read about as bein' picked up by the Phyllis!"

A chorus of derisive jeers, oaths and guffaws greeted the announcement.

Wallen's hand slipped into his coat pocket and closed over his automatic. They were crowding down the room, closing in around him now.

He glanced quickly over his shoulder to locate precisely the position of the rear door, should it come to a row—and instinctively stepped back a pace as a hulking, rawboned fellow, half drunk and carrying his liquor belligerently, lurched forward.

"Hif 'e says that, wot we says is that 'e's a bloody himpostor!" announced the man truculently. "An' wot's more, we doesn't like the looks of 'im when he comes in—does we, mates? An' wot's more—tyke that!" He made a sudden, wicked pass at Wallen's face.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1919.

WHEN COPS WALK OUT.

We may congratulate ourselves in South San Francisco that we do not employ a large police force. If the sheriff of the county went on strike, it would probably not result in promiscuous looting by hoodlums up and down the streets.

This has been the condition in Boston, where the police force recently declared a strike; and all the local toughs and hard-boiled eggs went out on a window-smashing expedition.

If we have need for police action on a grand scale in South San Francisco, all that is necessary is to muster a posse—of amateur policemen, who do not belong to a union, and are not likely to strike. They will simply do the job that is to be done, and return to their ordinary avocations upon dismissal.

We have this advantage over places like Boston, Chicago, New York, and other large towns; with us law and order form a part of everybody's responsibility. Enforcement of the law is not a trade in which a few professionals specialize. We are all ready to do police work here, because it is natural for us to insist on public orderliness—not because we are paid to maintain it.

BRONCHOS AND FISH.

The activity of the press agents concerning the performances of the Prince of Wales is disturbing the serenity of the Jeffersonians. He has lately succeeded in subduing a bucking broncho, and society editors have chronicled the fact. So that the Jeffersonians consider that we are being altogether too polite to royalty in paying attention to the circumstance.

The matter is really worth little attention. There are plenty of men on the western ranges who break bronchos every day, and whose names never get into the society columns. Why put the Prince of Wales there?

There is, of course, a certain languid interest in the fact that breaking bronchos is difficult and hazardous; it is, perhaps, a gratifying surprise to find that the Prince of Wales can do it. The idea that people of royal blood hardly know how to shave themselves receives a slight setback here. But the importance of the matter is trifling.

At Avalon, Catalina, Calif., the wife of one of the twenty richest people in the United States caught a fish lately weighing 225 pounds, and the reporters bleated the fact all over the papers. In one metropolitan daily the item covered a third of a column, ending: "Tired?" said she. "No; I'm not a bit tired."

This episode is about as interesting as the adventures of the Prince of Wales and the broncho. And as long as we, as a people, consider it worth while to devote newspaper space to the recreations of the wives of the very rich, we can hardly call other nations snobs for making a fuss over the pastimes of princes. But we are getting wiser all the time; we are less vulnerable to the disease than formerly—and other nations appear to be attaining the same stage of convalescence.

Are you wearied of the monotony of a humdrum existence? With a good book you may visit the far places of the earth and delve into their histories and secrets. There is no land you may not explore, no depth of learning you may not plumb, no height you may not scale. The loves and passions of the lower earth life, or the higher and more serene enjoyments of the spiritual—all are ours for the taking.

Strange truths often find themselves into the public print. For instance, one of our newly rich women was flaunting her diamonds in Newport recently when a gentleman, between puffs, leisurely remarked that "dressing that woman is like putting gold harness on a mule."

Andrew Carnegie made $500,000,000 in his lifetime, gave away between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000, and died with the small sum of $50,000,000 still on hand—enough to buy a perfectly good suit and a pair of up-to-date shoes.

That Detroit hog that was kept in cold storage for twenty-five years must be cool and mellow by this time. We suggest that it be turned over to the meat profiteers for their personal consumption.

There is a growing sentiment in favor of allowing labor a share in the profits of corporations. When that is done, the day of strikes and other disturbances will be relegated far to the rear.

Since America is a land of producers, it would be quite in order to produce a little harmony, sanity and cohesiveness. Pulling at both ends only widens the breach in the middle.

"Darling, I offer you my heart and hand," said a local swain recently. "Where's your pocketbook?" inquired the practical maiden. No deal.

Carranza announces that he will retire from the Mexican presidency in 1920. By that time, no doubt, he thinks there will be no presidency to hang onto.

Time to begin saving your hundred dollar bills, William. Christmas is rushing right along again, and your girl will expect a trinket or two.

Got the dumps, brother? Cheer up—it will be worse. When the cost of grub goes higher your spirits will be lower.

Some people are so short on brains they haven't sense enough to know it.

"A friend in need clings to you for all you are worth," walls an exchange. And lets go of you as soon as you are worthless.

The milk of human kindness is a good thing—until it is curdled.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Under this heading The Enterprise will publish, from week to week, a series of excellent recipes written especially for this paper by a woman who has had a university training in domestic science and a wide experience in cooking in her own home. Every recipe has been thoroughly tested and will be found economical and palatable.

Sweet Potatoes and Apples.

Slice sweet potatoes, one-fourth inch thick.

Slice an equal amount of apples.

Sugar.

Fat.

1. Parboil potatoes five minutes.

2. In a buttered dish place a layer of sweet potatoes and sprinkle with sugar (brown sugar gives better flavor) and dot with fat.

3. Then add a layer of apples and sprinkle with sugar and fat.

4. Continue, having two layers of each.

5. Add hot water (about one-half cup), cover and bake slowly until potatoes are tender.

6. Uncover at the last to brown and cook down until rich and syrupy.

Rice Balls.

2 cups cold cooked rice.

2 or 3 tablespoons milk.

1 egg.

2 tablespoons butter or fat.

½ teaspoon salt.

Speck pepper.

2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

1. Warm rice and milk in a double boiler.

2. Add beaten egg, butter and seasoning. Cook until egg is thickened, stirring.

3. Cool.

4. Shape into flat, round cakes.

5. Roll in fine, dried crumbs that have been sifted, the beaten egg and crumbs again.

6. Brown in hot fat in skillet.

The above is delicious when served with cheese sauce and makes an excellent meat and potato substitute.

Cheese Sauce.

1 cup milk.

2 tablespoons fat.

1½ tablespoons flour.

Salt.

Pepper.

Cheese.

1. Melt fat, but do not brown.

2. Remove from fire, add flour and seasonings, mixing well with the fat. Return to fire and cook slightly until mixture bubbles. Stir constantly.

3. Remove from fire, add the milk and stir well.

4. Return to fire and stir continually until mixture thickens and it reaches the boiling point. Do not boil.

5. Remove from fire and add grated cheese to suit the taste. Stir over a low fire until cheese melts. If the mixture becomes too hot the cheese will be tough and stringy.

6. Worcestershire sauce or other seasonings to suit the taste may be added.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE SHOWS BIG INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

If increase in number of pupils is taken as a gauge of a city's growth, South San Francisco has made rapid increase in population in the last year. There are now 678 pupils enrolled in the grammar school in this city with an average attendance of 644, which is 113 more than the average at the same period last year.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM PRACTICING STEADILY

The high school football team is doing some hard work in preparation for the coming football season. The first game will be with Redwood high October 11th, and the local team is practicing three nights a week getting in form.

Manager Jimmie McMills and Coach L. E. Adams have made arrangements for football suits for the team, and it is expected that these will be on hand Friday or Saturday of this week.

The steel lockers, purchased by the trustees from the Y. M. C. A. at San Francisco, have been put into the high school for the use of the athletic department, and are much appreciated by those privileged to use them. There are forty-eight of these lockers, and they fill a long-felt want.

Designed for Youthful Wearers

It takes considerable discrimination to choose suits for girls who are not quite grown up or for those who are grown, but still in their teens. It is not half so simple a matter as it seems, to express youth by varying the cut and finish of garments just enough to take them out of the young woman class and place them in the young girl company. Generally, in suits, this is accomplished by making coats vague as to fit and simple as to line and by following current fashions, as becomes youth, at a distance. The two suits presented in the picture are examples of good designing to meet the needs of the miss from fourteen to nineteen, and they are recommended for young women who affect youthful styles, providing their figures are girlish enough to suit these models.

Jersey cloth, serge, duvetyn or any of the standard suitings will make the smart suit shown at the left of the picture successfully, but the firmer weaves appear to be the best choice for misses' suits. This one is of beige colored serge trimmed with rows of narrow silk braid to match and insets of navy blue taffeta. The skirt is noticeably wider than those in vogue for older women and is gathered in at the waistline. Five short bands of braid in rows at each side simulate pockets.

The coat in this suit hangs from the shoulders in lines that are straight at the front and a little flaring at the sides and back. In this particular suit a deep cape collar replaces the small turnover that is so youthful, worn with a tie of silk, for the younger girls. But a smaller collar would not admit an inlay of taffeta such as finishes this one. The braid on the sleeves is put on in rows but not in straight lines and a curved inset of taffeta is placed above it. The sleeves are especially good.

Dark blue serge makes the chic suit with bloused coat, at the right of the picture. Narrow braid in two rows finishes the collar, the sleeves, and the skirt of the blouse. Silk cord and round buttons account for the fastening in the best way and form a finish for the close-fitting sleeves. The collar in this suit is the style best liked for girls.

Julia B. Smith

Fabrics for Draping.

As plans for the fall season mature, the dress goods houses are finding that the style of material giving the best draping effect is the type mostly wanted. Soft finished goods on the velours order attract the buyers' attention over the hard finished, stiffer materials. Fabrics almost approaching the velvet order, it is said, will find the most popular call. This will be particularly true of cloakings, and applies also to the cloth to be used in suits.

WESTERN STATES BUY MOST STAMPS

San Francisco, Sept. 26.—Three western states of the Twelfth Federal Reserve District, Oregon, Utah and Nevada, ranked among the first ten states, territories, and possessions of the United States in the per capita savings and investment in thrift stamps, war savings stamps, and treasury savings certificates for the first seven months of 1919, according to a report of the Treasury Department. Oregon took third place with a per capita investment of $1.45 and a total of $1,309,922.42; Utah eighth, with an average individual investment of $1.30 and a total of nearly $600,000; while Nevada stood ninth, with $1.26 per capita and a total of approximately $150,000.

Ohio led the nation. With an average purchase of $2.41 the people of that state lent the government $12,807,268.32, nearly twice as much as any other one state. In other words, Ohio is the thriftiest state in the nation. The Philippines was lowest, with a per capita investment of .005.

The grand total subscribed by the fifty-three states, territories and pos-

POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE OF THIS CITY MARRIED WEDNESDAY

A wedding of interest to many people in South San Francisco, where the young people married are well known, took place at All Souls' Church in this city Wednesday, when Miss Alice May McGrath became the wife of Charles J. O'Rourke. Mrs. O'Rourke is the daughter of Mrs. Alice McGrath of this city. Mr. O'Rourke's parents live in San Jose. He is well known here, having been in the employ of the Western Meat Company for several years. Mr. and Mrs. O'Rourke are spending a honeymoon in the southern part of the state.

..... sessions of the United States for the period of January 1-July 31 was $95,400,470.21.

The country is far behind the quota asked by the government at the beginning of the year to help meet the cost of the war. A per capita quota of ten dollars for every man, woman, and child in the country was set at that time, which would total $1,000,000,000. If the people of the United States fail to sober up immediately from their spending "jag" and invest they will pay that billion in taxes.
